Scope and Content

This collection contains 44 boxes and 1 oversized folder (18 cubic ft.). It is divided into six series:

Series I: Constitution, By-laws, Minutes and Reports, 1852-1959, n.d.;

Series II: Correspondence and Proposals, 1913-1970, n.d.;

Series III: Programs and Publicity, 1896-1968, n.d.;

Series IV: Scrapbooks, 1934-1965;

Series V: Admissions Records, 1860-1914, n.d.;

Series VI: Volumes and Oversized Material, 1849-1973, n.d.

The majority of the collection prior to 1918 is in German, including the annual reports and board minutes.

The monthly reports from the 1940s often include the president's report, superintendent's report, a health or medical report and a music report.

Series I largely consists of the minutes of the Board of Directors, the annual and monthly reports and treasurer's reports as well as some receipts. Copies of the Monthly Reports are also found in volumes 42-43 in the letterpress copybooks.

Series II contains letters to and from members of the Board of Directors and the Ladies Board. There is also a sampling of letters containing proposals of work to be done for the institution.

Programs and promotional material for the General Protestant Orphan Home are found in Series III. A large portion of the material is on the annual Orphan Feast held every year beginning in 1849 to raise funds from the community and Protestant churches. In addition there are newspaper articles that describe the new facilities in Mt. Washington, fundraisers and various outings for the children. Series IV, Scrapbooks, also contains information about the Orphan Feast.

Series V contains admissions records. These files are chronologically arranged with the child's or family's name listed as folder's title. When the folder holds the records of more than one child from a family, the children's names are listed in the notes.

Series VI contains 59 volumes, one oversized box and one oversized folder. These items have been arranged to mirror the order of the five previous series, with minutes, financial records, scrapbooks and admissions among the categories. The financial volumes showcase some of the common expenses for the institution and the local businesses that they patronized.

Historical/Biographical Information

The General Protestant Orphan Home was founded in 1849 when Cincinnati, like many other cities in the nation, experienced a devastating cholera epidemic. Many children were orphaned with no family left to care for them. A group of German Protestants under the leadership of Pastor August Kröll decided to create an organization dedicated to providing care for these children. The original name of the organization was the "Deutscher Allgemein Protestantischer Waisen-Verein von Cincinnati, Ohio" [German General Protestant Orphan Society of Cincinnati, Ohio].

The first effort to raise funds was with a concert. With the proceeds of $4,000, four acres were purchased at Highland and Shillito Streets in Mt. Auburn. Construction of the orphanage was started in 1850 and finished in 1851. The motto of the orphanage was to "create worthwhile members of society, good citizens to the City of Cincinnati, and hard workers". Sixty-two children were accepted initially. The orphanage accepted full orphans and would admit children of a single parent home, but only if the parent had been a supporting member of the organization and could show great need.

By 1870 there were 106 children in the orphanage. Eighty-four of them attended school. They were given music lessons, and on Sundays tutored in religion by students from the Lane Seminary. Two physicians who donated their services routinely checked the children's health. The personnel at the institution included a servant who was assisted by a sixteen year old boy, two seamstresses who were paid by the Ladies Board, and five maids. Four female residents in the orphanage, aged 14 to 16, assisted the paid staff.

In the early years the orphanage was always short of money, therefore a fund was created to accept donations and bequests in 1865. All Cincinnati Protestants were encouraged to become members at the cost of two dollars per year. A lifetime membership could be purchased for a contribution of fifty dollars. To lessen maintenance spending, the orphanage owned some animals such as cows and chickens and also grew many of their own fruits and vegetables.

In addition to attending school, the children were given lessons during the summer. Boys were instructed in German, reading, writing, mathematics, geography and history. Girls practiced knitting, sewing, crocheting and embroidery. There were separate playrooms for boys and girls, stocked with toys and games. Their bedrooms were dorm style, with as many as twelve children in a room.

By 1885 the building had to be expanded for the second time. There were over one hundred children, maintained at the cost of $75.90 per child annually. By 1920, there were 135 children in the orphanage, most of them half-orphans. When the children turned 14, some of them would be "out-placed" to a home. There they would help with the household, or were given training in a trade. The children would be visited by members of the "Out-placed Children's Committee" to see if they were being treated well, and that the arrangement was satisfactory to both child and the family who had taken in the child. The "employers" would pay the orphanage for the children's services, and those monies were invested on behalf of the children. When the children left the orphanage at age 18, they would receive the amount saved.

In 1918, at a time of much anti-German sentiment due to World War I, the organization voted to change the name to General Protestant Orphan Home. According to the history, "A Century of Service" in box 6, German was no longer taught after January 9, 1918.

A plan to relocate the orphanage started in 1941 with the purchase of property on Salem Pike and Ohio Pike (currently Beechmont Avenue) in Mt. Washington. The board voted in 1943 on building the new home on the Mt. Washington property at some future date. The name Beech Acres for the grounds was suggested in June of 1946. By 1947 there were an average of 83 children in the home, maintained at an approximate cost of $7.61 per week. At a board meeting in October 1948, building plans were discussed and approved. The cost was estimated at $1,000,000, which was to include 6 cottages for 16 children and one housemother in each, as well as all other buildings, roadwork, furniture and furnishings. In August 1950 the construction was completed and the children moved to the new facility.

In 1989 the General Protestant Orphan Home officially changed its name to Beech Acres, and the last residential cottage closed, their aim being "to preserve the child in the family-at-risk". In the early twenty-first century, Beech Acres is no longer an orphanage but offers a number of programs dedicated to the welfare of children, orphan or not.

(This information was gathered from the collection through the 1960s, most of it found in the board minutes, financial reports, annual reports and newspaper clippings. Information after 1970 is from the Beech Acres history on their website <http://www.beechacres.org> and from pamphlets and newsletters in the library's collection.)

Processing Information	Arranged and described by Christine S. Engels and Ursula Umberg, July 2010.
Note to Researchers	All of the volumes are somewhat fragile, however some are moreso than others. The most fragile are volumes 5, 8, 10, 11, 14, 16, 18, 21. All need to be handled with care and preferably used with a book cradle. The best sources for genealogical information are the admission records in boxes 7 and 8 as well as volumes 53-59 which list the children by name. There is also some information about the children and their families in volume 29. This is a financial volume that includes information on payments made by families or guardians of the children in the orphan home. The children's names are listed for all records in boxes 7 and 8 and for some of the volumes. These genealogical records cover the years: 1851-1914 and 1930-1947.
